Educational Method and Skill

1. Course Description

What is instructional design? In short, instructional design is the systematic process by which instructional materials are designed, developed, and delivered. The terms instructional design, instructional technology, educational technology, curriculum design, and instructional systems design.

This course is designed to give students theoretical and practical knowledge that how learners will learn in their class.