

数学入門Ⅰ

Syllabus Number

MAT-101

[VI]

Elective

2

credit

SAKAMOTO, Kazuyoshi

1. Course Description

In this course, students will work to acquire the mathematical ways of thinking and calculation skills minimally necessary for daily life, as well as to gain an ability to understand the meaning of written problems, an ability that is sufficient for them to solve such problems independently, as opposed to simply having only a superficial understanding, such as one based on the memorization of solution-patterns.