

Japan's Industries II

Syllabus Number

ECP-214

Elective

2 credit

ISHIGE, Hiroshi

1. Course Description

This course aims to understand industry deeply and multifacetedly that is the foundation of our rich living. It is business (industry) that provides goods and services necessary for our daily lives and brings workplace and wealth. In this course, students will learn natures and roles common to business, histories, natures and roles of each business.

In the fall semester, students learn individual industries, such as agriculture, distribution, manufacturing, and service industry, which have been supported our life and society (text 3rd edition).