

Introduction to Economic History I

Syllabus Number

ECH-101

Compulsory Elective
2 credit

YOTSUYA, Eriko

1. Course Description

Studying history is essential in order to understand the present and open the way to the future. In this course, we will study the formation and development of a market economy or capitalism. After taking this course, students will be able to explain the present situation of Japan and the world from a historical perspective. Introduction to Economic History I will cover the period mainly from the middle ages to the start of the Industrial Revolution in Britain.