

観光学実習(空港)Ⅰ

Syllabus Number

TOS-201

Elective

2 credit

MIYAZAKI, Hiroki

1. Course Description

Take advantage of the opportunity this course will offer to get a more “close-up,” “broader” and “more proactive” study of tourism. Priority will be given to study that takes place outside of the classroom, allowing students to personally go out into the field and experience identification of potential issues & challenges as well as solution strategies.

This course is planned to take place on-site in the actual environments of Japan’s major airports for international and domestic routes, at Haneda Airport.

Through study in the field observing actual airline operations work, students will gain an in-depth understanding of the airline industry.

This course also plans to invite guest lecturers on-site who are professionals working in the airline industry.

Thus, this course aims to provide you with valuable opportunities to acquire information and know-how through actual field experiences.