

先史考古学演習

ABE, Asaei

Elective 2 credit

1. Course Description

As participants learned the basic method and theory of archaeology in spring, in this course, they will be required to apply the method and theory to archaeological materials concerning their own subjects. Participants will review the papers selected by them. After that, they restore the behavior of prehistoric people using the materials possessed by each participant. In the first lesson, the direction of research of each participant is examined, and each person must select specific papers and materials. In the lesson, discussion is done to deepen the understanding of the tasks.