

Introduction to Economic History I

Syllabus Number

ECH-101

Elective

2 credit

AWAKURA, Daisuke

1. Course Description

Economic history is the history of economic life. Economic life is necessary for human beings in every part of the world and in every era. Following this path leads to an understanding of the modern economic system. Based on the above, this lecture will focus on the economic history from the 16th century to the 19th century. The lectures will not only cover the political and social movements behind economic activity, but also the situation in Africa and Latin America, as well as gender perspectives.