1. Course Description

In this course, you will explore the role of education centering on the learning that opens up life and the process of such learning. As the life of individuals become more diverse, apart from course selection and career choice, a comprehensive career design encompassing the way of working, lifestyle and the way of living is required. While comprehending the structure of the society, you will take a standpoint that would relativize the selection and the formation of career, and you will take a view of the role played by education in creating a society with good work-life balance.
