

Regional Society and Learning

Syllabus Number

EDU-202

Elective

2 credit

IGOU, Yoshinobu

1. Course Description

This course aims to study of a connection between regional society and learning referring to the key points outlined in methodological studies of community education plans. This course will revisit the perception that self-directed learning is in a specified period of our life cycle. This course will also make an attempt to draw up community learning plans and explore how to provide regional society with opportunities for learning based on methodological studies working in close contact with students.