

International Economics I

Syllabus Number

ECO-201

Elective

2 credit

SUZUKI, Taku

1. Course Description

In this course, for sophomore (and above) students who have learned introductory course of international economics, I will explain the several important topics on international economics which attracts a public attention in a daily life from fundamental level. (Contrary to the Introductory course, knowledge on the International economics at high school level is prerequisite.) In this Semester, we will focus on the contemporary history of International economics and topics on the international finance.