1. Course Description

Seminar I and II will focus on understanding "the current economic situations of developing Asia". The course will be conducted in a participatory manner by the students. Therefore, it is expected, under the guidance of the supervisor, that the students will choose their study themes, collect information and data on them, determine the methodology of the study, make a study report, and prepare the presentation materials. The seminar will seek an opportunity for the students to make a presentation on their findings.
