

Reading Materials in Japanese History 3C- I

Syllabus Number

JPH-221

Compulsory Elective
2 credit

FUKAYA, Koji

1. Course Description

This class of the reading materials in Japanese history 3C- I is to study and learn how to read the documents or records in Japanese medieval and early modern ages, and to understand the meaning of the contents of those. So the students participate in this class will read such types of documents or records, and translate them to modern words or sentences, and after that investigate about their contents or historical backgrounds, further make presentation of its outcome.

For that purpose, the students will make some groups and to charge that. Every groups must have their presentation twice in this first semester.