

Basic Training on Journalism

Syllabus Number

SOC-205

Compulsory Elective
2 credit

KINOSHITA, Koichi

1. Course Description

Using classical classification, journalism can be subdivided into five categories: sender / recipient / media / content / effect. This practical training deals mainly with newspaper content, that is, newspaper articles. Newspaper articles are created amid complex dynamics and are therefore biased. Particular newspaper articles are written from a specific viewpoint and perspective. For this reason, readers need to look at newspaper articles from multiple perspectives. Develop basic skills while sharing your views and ideas with other participants.