

Consumer Economics I

Syllabus Number

PFP-205

Elective

2 credit

YUKAWA, Shiho

1. Course Description

In this course, we will study various issues we are facing in our daily lives, such as working, child rearing and consumer affairs from an economic point of view. The knowledge gained in this course will be useful in your life and work after graduation. The goal of this course is to be able to understand issues related to your lives and to assess critically these issues.