

Readings in International Japanese Studies II

Syllabus Number

ENG-204

Elective

2 credit

ISHIKAWA, Takafumi

1. Course Description

In this class, students carefully read and understand the political science essays written in English. Many people may not be good at English, but this class aims to overcome the hesitation to read English literature. Students' English ability is not required. I will explain thoroughly from the basics of reading English. Students learn how to read English correctly and translate it into beautiful Japanese. (* Learning at university is called "study") Also, what you will read in this class is English literature, but it is not "English class". The purpose of this course is to learn the basics of history and political science in the process of reading and understanding famous English sentences. If you can read English, the range of historical research will greatly expand. Let's take this opportunity to try to overcome our weak point.