

臨床心理関連行政論

Elective 2 credit
MURAKAMI, Kana

1. Course Description

Clinical psychologists may meet situations such as non-disclosure counseling reveals high risk of self-harm or other-harm or child-abuse, and then they will be in a dilemma. In such cases, laws or ethics may provide good codes to break through those situations. So, clinical psychologists must have knowledge about laws and ethics of the various fields where they carry on their careers.

Laws are to be revised according to the states of the societies. Clinical psychologists are required to have good sensitivity about the trends in the society.
