

英語学 III

Syllabus Number

ENL-303

Compulsory Elective

2 credit

IMASEKI, Masao

1. Course Description

This course is mainly on how the English language was born and how it has developed over the past 1,600 years. The primary goals of the course are; (1) to study the linguistic changes that English has undergone from Old English to Present Day English; (2) to familiarize students with the linguistic concepts necessary for understanding how English has changed; and (3) to explore the cultural and historical events that accompanied and sometimes influenced these changes.