1. Course Description

At the graduate level, it is important to learn the theory and knowledge on the international economy and China / emerging economies economy, and at the same time to develop problem finding, survey / analysis and research capability accurately using theory and knowledge. From both sides of macro and micro, we analyze and study the global economy, emerging economies such as China and their industries and corporate issues, and discuss lectures while studying with students. Besides, I try to properly guide the students' papers according to the needs of each student and their research situation and ability.
