OKAMOTO, Junko

1. Course Description

Students continue their research, get data, either by questionnaire sheets or interviews, analyze fully and present the findings. Though the studies are done by group, the final reports have to be written by oneself each. Though their findings might seem to be trivial, the students' experiences would become the precious one as studying about human beings and put one more knowledge on the pile of precedent studies. The tour at the Family Court may also add depth to the study.
