1. Course Description

The general purpose of this second semester is, emphasizing oral communication, to talk about actions that have occurred in the past.

The central theme will be the past tenses of the indicative mood, students will develop, on this theme, the four skills necessary to master a language (listening, speaking, reading, writing)

At the end of this second semester, students will apply this knowledge to be able to explain their daily routine in the past, past events, and recent past actions. They may also chronologically order past events.

Additionally, the future and the Imperative Mood will be studied, making an introduction to the Subjunctive Mood.
