

アジアの国際関係Ⅱ

Syllabus Number

INR-206

Elective

2 credit

MICHELIN, Franck

1. Course Description

The topic of this class is: "The international relations in East Asia: history and today". The first semester will be about the period between Antiquity and the start of modern times when the second will be about modern times until today. International relations constitute a very broad topic, but we will focus on two of them: the relations inside of the region, and the relations between East Asia and the outside world.

The first classe will be given on demand, through the LMS. The next classes should be given in the classroom.