

Fire Prevention Administration III

Law and

Syllabus Number

LAW-203

Elective

2 credit

UMEHARA, Tadashi

1. Course Description

Fire prevention to protect lives and property of citizens from fires, is one of the important duties of a fire service. Moreover, hazardous materials regulation administration is an important field of fire prevention administration.

This course aims to study about the definition of hazardous materials, the technical standards for the position, structure and equipment of facilities, the technical standards of transportation, etc.

In addition, this course is very useful for those who take the examination for fire prevention technicians.