

Introduction to Community Mental Health

Syllabus Number

CLI-203

Elective

2 credit

ISHIDA, Wataru

1. Course Description

Community psychology is the science of thinking and practicing humans and communities. It is important to consider not only how humans adapt to the environment for psychosocial issues, but also how to adapt the environment to humans. Community psychology is the latter. In this lecture, we will review the theme of community psychology. And learn about concepts and interventions.