

Seminar I

Syllabus Number

SEM-301

Compulsory 2
credit

YAMAMOTO, Hiroyuki

1. Course Description

We start with the argument that "we make one without financial assets, those who have will not cut down." Although it is said that the period from savings to investment is long, although the deposit savings still have a large weight, it will argue whether there is a way to overcome this situation.

Learn about the attractiveness of investment in securities, in particular to deepen the understanding of equity investment, to learn the individual and diversified investment methods of shares, and to build a pilot portfolio.

Learn incidental circumstances on real equity investment by possessing individual stocks if possible.