1. Course Description

This course (composed of Development Finance III in the spring semester and Development Finance IV in the autumn semester) deals with development finance issues in Asia.

Development Finance III will discuss three major themes in development finance in the context of developing Asia, i.e., (i) roles of finance to sustain the economic development in Asia, (ii) financial inclusion for better access to financial services, and (iii) financial stability. The course will also pick up some current topics related to development finance from leading newspapers and journals which will merit discussion in classes.
