

保健体育科教育学演習

Elective 2 credit
TAKADA, Akishige

1. Course Description

Through reading previous research and treatises on health and physical education, we will learn about research perspectives that contribute to improving health and physical education classes in the field of education. Classes will be conducted in the form of presentations and discussions. In the class, we will learn practically how to study teaching materials and improve the class in health and physical education.