1. Course Description

Global demand for infrastructure is enormous with rapid urbanization and economic growth of emerging countries specially in Asia. Japanese companies are capitalizing these opportunities and Japanese Government's policy is to support them as important growth strategy.

Through the course, analysis on several business fields of infrastructure system export is made based on my working experience.

The goal of the course is that students understand characteristics of at least one business field of infrastructure system export as well as strength/challenge of Japanese companies active in these fields and can explain in the report/presentation at the end of semester.
