

Methods of Social Survey I

Syllabus Number

STS-201

Compulsory 2
credit

IKE, Shuichirou

1. Course Description

This course aims to understand basic quantitative and qualitative methods for social research.

This lecture deals with the basic history of social research, its usage and roles in modern society, the strategy of social research, the problems of social research and survey, and the ethics of social research. Students understand that hypotheses are very important for social research.