

Introduction to Economic Data

Syllabus Number

ECS-101

Compulsory Elective
2 credit

ISHIKAWA, Yoshitaka

1. Course Description

In the globalization era, countries and regions in the world have become closely connected in economic terms. We thus must be able to perceptively interpret economic affairs. This course introduces many kinds of economic data, particularly from Japan, because they are essential for understanding relevant economic activities. The purpose of this course is to inform participants of the kinds of economic data available in Japan and to help them appreciate what these data mean.