

Corporate Accounting Law I

Syllabus Number

NFL-305

Elective

2 credit

YOSHIDA, Takaaki

1. Course Description

The existence of companies is indispensable in modern era where capitalistic economy has developed. Corporate Accounting is a method for recording and communicating the activities of these companies.

In this course, we will study Financial Accounting, one of Corporate Accounting, whose purpose is reporting conditions and results of companies to their stakeholders. This course will help students to acquire basic abilities to make financial statements such as balance sheets or income statements.