

Japanese Constitution II

Syllabus Number

PUL-102

Compulsory 2
credit

YOSHIKAWA, Tomoshi

1. Course Description

This course aims to give the students who are not familiar with Japanese Constitutional law the basic understandings and knowledge on it. Japanese Constitutional law is roughly divided into two components: the structure of the government and protections of human rights. This course focuses on the latter and deals with equal protection of law, personal freedoms, economic freedoms, and social rights among other things.