

Introduction to Law I

Syllabus Number	FUL-101
Elective	2 credit
NAKAMURA, Erika

1. Course Description

Law has a profound connection with our daily lives. Learning law in this course would be an important opportunity for all students, let alone students who pursue legal career or aim to be public officers, because legal knowledge provides us with tools for avoiding or solving actual problems in our lives. This course is aimed at giving students the foundation for future studies in each specialized legal field through a process of capturing the entire picture of functioning of law in a society and learning a legal way of thinking which is often referred to as a "legal mind".
