

Finance II

Syllabus Number

MOF-202

李 素軒

Elective

2 credit

1. Course Description

This course serves as an introduction to modern finance with a special focus on financial globalization. Along with an overview of basic concepts and historical background of the global spread of finance, the major issues of today's global financial system will be covered.

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to understand the basic financial concepts and theories regarding financial globalization. Students will also be able to understand the historical and institutional background of real world financial topics and explain in their own words.