1. Course Description

In this class, we will focus on the “I” that participates in and thinks about volunteer activities. We will also consider the various answers to the question of volunteerism as a means of social participation that gives form to the thoughts of “I” and “others,” from various perspectives. In order to face this question, this class will consider the social impact of participating in volunteer activities that develop while interacting with others through the lectures, class discussions, and group work.
