1. Course Description

In special schools (for intellectual and/or physical disabilities) the number of students with serious and complicated disabilities is growing and responding to this is becoming a pressing issue. We will examine the situation in special needs schools for children with multiple disabilities (e.g. children with physical and intellectual disabilities, and children with health problems as well as physical and intellectual disabilities), and learn about the practical teaching methods and content, partnerships with relevant organizations, individually-tailored teaching plans and education delivered by visiting teachers.
