1. Course Description

Countries in the world exist based on their natural environment and history which produce their cultures, lives, tradition and industries. Therefore to learn the relationship between the background such as "geography/history" and current status such as "culture/people's life/traditional art/industry" leads to understand countries more essentially and deeply.

This course highlights cities and local areas of major countries in the world. Students will learn culture, life and tourism resources of cities and local areas and develop ability to figure out solutions for their growth.
