

Seminar I

Syllabus Number

SEM-301

Compulsory 2
credit

KONISHI, Anna

1. Course Description

In this seminar, we will deepen our understanding of social problems through the reading of designated texts, followed by student group works, fieldworks, presentations, and discussions. We will learn about fundamental methods of research and presentation on community problems, including topics such as poverty, population aging, childcare and local vitalization. During the first semester, students will conduct fieldworks and give presentations in joint seminars and in debriefing sessions on campus.