

International Economics I

Syllabus Number ECO-201
Elective 2 credit
OKUDA, Hidenobu

1. Course Description

In this class, you will learn basic knowledge about the globalized economy. International Economics I discusses “international transactions of goods and services” and “international transactions of currencies and funds”. International Economics II discusses the institutional frameworks and economic policies supporting today's world economy. Studying both International Economics I and II will give you the basic scope for understanding of the world economy.