

子ども家庭福祉

Syllabus Number

SWS-201

Elective

2 credit

SASAKI, Sawako

1. Course Description

Child and Family Welfare is a subject in which students learn about the history, systems, and policies related to child and family welfare in modern society, as well as trends and issues in child and family welfare. In addition, through classes in which students learn about the opinions of others and think about their own opinions, they will acquire the communication skills required of staff involved in child and family welfare in order to collaborate with other professions.