1. Course Description

In this lecture, we will aim to acquire basic knowledge of macroeconomics at the high school level, and explain the basic keywords.

The economy is a world of "any event can bring about an effect in an unexpected way; if the wind blows the bucket makers prosper; if the wind blows, the bucket shop will make a profit," and since the modern economy is becoming more complex and diverse, the basic knowledge required to decipher it is increasing proportionally. Therefore, there will be a lot of writing on the board, which may seem a little demanding for students. Concentration is the key to success in this course. In addition, it is important to pursue "why" such as "why is it so" and "why do we think so". By taking this course, please acquire the habit of thinking about "why" when you look at economic phenomena in your daily life.
