

Literature in English Speaking World I

Syllabus Number

LIE-101

Elective

2 credit

ONO, Masako

1. Course Description

This is an introductory course designed with the goal to help students acquire the basic skills necessary to understand and analyze the literary genres of poetry, novel, and drama. As they read a range of works belonging to these genres, students will explore the basic concepts of narrative, poetic, and dramatic structures. Students will also read below the surface of the texts for their historical, psychological, social, and philosophical value.