

Seminar : Historical Archaeology

Elective 2 credit
KUSHIHARA, Koichi·HATA, Taisuke

1. Course Description

Historical archaeology is a highly interdisciplinary field in archaeology, and it has uniqueness as an academic field in the point of drawing a rich historical image using various historical materials as well as character historical materials and archaeological materials. Based on this, we select themes of interest, understand the history of research and the current state of research, and present important issues, problems, and future issues of the theme. Based on these, we will discuss the course in a manner. In addition, while visiting museums related to historical archaeology, discussions may be conducted based on actual materials.