

1. Course Description

This course will explore the relationship between time and the development of mind. There are two different direction in this relationship such as the influence of time on people, and the influence of people on time. From the former point of view, the changing "mind" with the passage of time has been explored in the field of developmental psychology. Then from the latter point of view, the active "mind" of the people who tries to control time has been explored.
