データサイエンスの情報技術

KOBAYASHI, Yasuyuki

1. Course Description

This subject is one of the subjects to study basic knowledge and skills of data science in order to achieve "The basic knowledge and skills related to data science can be utilized for data analysis" that is one of the diploma policies of the master's course.

Using online materials and computer exercises, students will acquire various basic skills related to information technology in data science in order to develop the ability to continuously analyze data science and utilize it for their own research and business.