アメリカ経済論Ⅳ (American Economy Ⅳ)

寺川 隆一郎

1. 授業の概要(ねらい)

This course offers new insights into the age-old theme of policy-driven development of a national economy by showing how the US government has shaped the structure of American economy from its founding to this day. Students will discover aspects of the US economic history, policy intervention and market structure. The general aim is to reassess how national economy is created and nurtured through interactions between policy and market behavior across different settings, times and contexts. Students taking this course will become familiar with key elements of the US specific economic structure by learning to critically assess the assigned texts in the class.

The course will be conducted through a combination of short presentations, in-class reading and discussion of texts.

2. 授業の到達目標
