1. 授業の概要(ねらい)

This graduate seminar course aims to develop graduate students' skills for a professional presentation at a scholarly conference. Depending on the students' research field, it will be designed around the individual English language proficiency level of the students enrolled. In order to successfully make academic presentation and/or publish peer-reviewed articles or something equivalent to it, it is crucially important to understand how to do so. This course is based on students' own research interest as well as instructor's own research interest (e.g. international relations, security studies, Japanese studies). It also intends to discover a shared interest and develop over the course of the year.

2. 授業の到達目標

- ・To understand the basic structure of academic presentations (as well as peer-reviewed journal articles if necessary)
- ・To be able to make academic presentations of own research topic(s) (and present in the form of articles or something equivalent if possible)
- ・To read and understand the materials and issues deeply
- ・To engage actively through discussion

3. 成績評価の方法および基準

- ・Active class participation (e.g. discussion, LMS) & assignments 30%
- ・Presentation 40%
- ・Final paper 30%

4. 教科書・参考文献
